

Biographical Information

Eric Brown, President, California Telehealth Network (CTN)

Eric Brown is the President of the California Telehealth Network. Eric is an experienced manager in the telecommunications industry, and a 15-year veteran of the cable television industry. Eric combines senior-level experience in cable network affiliate relations and experience in managing multiple broadband system marketing and operations.

Most recently Eric served as Executive Vice President of Affiliate Relations for Herring Broadcasting and for The Africa Channel, served as President of Western Division Operations for Charter Communications and President of the Minnesota Division of Time Warner Cable. He has extensive experience in consumer brand management with a variety of consumer product companies, including The Procter & Gamble Company, H.J. Heinz, and Bumble Bee Seafoods.

Brown served as past Chairman of the California Cable and Telecommunications Association (CCTA) and is a recipient of the prestigious National Cable & Telecommunications Association Vanguard Award for excellence in cable operations and the cable industry's CTAM Chairman's Award for excellence in cable marketing.

A graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) with a Bachelor's degree in Political Science, Eric is a four time All-American in track and field, and also played football at UCLA. He earned a Master's degree in Business Administration from the Darden School of Business Management at the University of Virginia, and has completed post-graduate work including the NAMIC Executive Leadership Development Program (ELDP) at the Anderson Graduate School of Management at UCLA, and the CTAMU Marketing Executive Education Program at the Harvard Business School.